Professional Disclosure Statement

Therapeutic Approach:

My approach, drawing from several theoretical orientations, is client-centered, based on the belief that every individual brings a unique and formative personal, family and cultural experience. In our sessions, we will explore the places you feel stuck, unresolved issues and unhealed emotional wounds that may be keeping you from moving forward or are causing you distress. We will look at the way your family/cultural history has impacted your current values, relationships, and behaviors. We will examine thoughts, feelings and beliefs that influence your choices and your reactions to situations in which you find yourself today. During the therapeutic process, it is important you let me know if anything makes you feel uncomfortable or uneasy. You may, and are encouraged to, ask questions about anything that happens in therapy or request a change in direction.

Education and Training:

I hold a Master's degree in Marriage, Couple and Family Counseling from George Fox University.

My training has included Family and Couples therapy, Non-directive, child centered Play Therapy, Group work (including art therapy), Emotionally Focused Therapy, Intersubjectivity with an attachment focus, Human Growth and Development, Cultural Foundations and Social Justice, Lifestyle and Career Development, Addictions, Spiritual Identity, Shame and Grace, and Collaborative Problem Solving.

I am currently a registered LMFT intern with the state of Oregon and am under the supervision of Dominique L. Sotelo, a Licensed Marriage and Family Therapist. I would be happy to explain this process further to you at any time. As a registered intern of Oregon, I abide by the code of ethics. For a detailed description of the code of ethics please visit <http://www.counseling.org/knowledge-center/ethics>.

Termination:

Although the client is generally the one who decides when to end therapy, I also reserve the right to do so, allowing at least one session for closure. If, however, the client verbally or physically threatens or harasses my family or me, I reserve the right to terminate treatment immediately and unilaterally. I will offer referral information to another therapist, including information about the incident that caused termination. For the client, ending a therapeutic relationship is best done in person, rather than over the phone. I recommend at least one, and up to three, sessions to properly bring your therapy to a close if possible.

Payment for services:

50 minute Individual session: $75

90 minute Couple/Family session: $125

I also offer a sliding scale payment options which is dependent on financial need. Please ask me about this option so we can discuss what that might mean for you and/or your family. Please note that all payment is due at the beginning of each session. If you need to cancel an appointment, please do so 24 hours in advance to avoid being charged. If you miss an appointment due to unusual circumstances, feel free to discuss this with me.

Reporting and Confidentiality:

Both my supervisor and I are bound ethically and by law to maintain your privacy as the client and keep the information discussed and exchanged during our session confidential. The exception to this is if there is a concern for your safety or for the safety of those around you. These exceptions are laid out in the Client Bill of Rights below:
